

The trip was bittersweet for me. On the one hand, I have a heart wrenching understanding of the tragedy that is New Orleans... and is still so raw and anguished. (Unfortunately, I feel skeptical that all that could be done ...is being done for the people who live there).

On the other hand, I feel blessed to have been surrounded with all of you... who have a generous spirit, loving heart and strong will who give of themselves freely for so many different causes not just in New Orleans but in everyday life.
